

Modern Trend Seen In College Administration

Modernization is the key to the changes that have been undergone by the College over the course of the summer, particularly in the administration field. Gone is the Student Life Office, and in its place there now exists a branch that covers anything that is non-instructional and non-business in origin. (These are the other two branches of the re-organized administration.) The new branch is known as Personnel Services. It covers such areas as counselling, dormitories, social programs, activities, etc., many of the things that were under the jurisdiction of the old Student Life Office.

Very little over-lapping exists between the three branches as they now exist. Each one has specific areas of interest and is confined to them. Of necessity, however, there are a few overlapping areas such as registration and admission which fall within the branches of Instruction and Personnel Services.

To coincide with these revisions, the old administration offices have been renovated and reconstructed to facilitate the carrying out of administrative plans, to enhance their contributions to college life and influence, and in general to modernize them to the point where the new administrators feel they should be. Some important aspects of this modernization, according to President Martin are the increased efficiency and greatly improved psychological appeal of these new offices. Dr. Martin also pointed out that the Personnel Service Office will have a full-time receptionist whose job will include the directing of student questions and requests pertaining to that area of college life in the proper channels and the following through of the same to completion, or to the students' satisfaction.

Mail System Features New Delivery Services

This year because of a change in the postal system, resident students may well be shouting down the dormitory corridors, "Any mail for me?" Due to increased enrollment the college post office no longer has adequate facilities for the extra burden thrown upon it. To alleviate this problem, all resident student mail will be delivered to the dormitories to be distributed in mail boxes at some convenient place that will be accessible to students. Another tentative plan for at least Bliss Hall, would provide for the delivery of mail to each room by the proctors of that dormitory.

The post office has been moved from its old location to a new one in the basement of Green Hall.

Extension Div. Offers Greater Opportunity

Development of the college's Extension Division is keeping pace with the day class program. Approximately nine hundred people are expected to enroll in Fall classes offered by the college beginning the week of September 16. This growing segment of the college, which is about two-thirds the size of the day college, now offers sixty-six courses taught by fifty-five instructors.

Mr. Stephen Poliacik, Chairman of the Extension Division, reported that the courses were offered to both graduates and undergraduates on campus as well as off campus in various localities throughout the state. He also revealed that the college now offers a Master of Arts degree in music in addition to the other degrees that have been made available in the past.

Students Find Daily Schedule Changed

Revision at Trenton State has even found its way to the long standing daily class schedules. No longer do classes begin at 8:50 A. M., and end at 4:40 P. M. Students will have to begin the day at 8:30 A. M. if their schedules include first hour classes. And as class scheduling now stands, there are provisions for nine classes a day ending at 5:20 P. M., but Mr. Michael Fano has announced that so far, no students have been scheduled for ninth hour classes. The administrations' explanation for the revised schedule, again is one of increased enrollment with the last class hour being held in reserve for unforeseen circumstances and an even greater enrollment than anticipated.

Classes now begin at half-past the hour, and end at twenty minutes after the following hour. The administration views this as more efficient class scheduling for the needs of the expanding college. The beginning of each class hour is easier to remember, pointed out Dr. Charles McCracken, Dean of Students, and he voiced the hope that students would endeavor to learn to call each class by the hour in which the first half of it falls. In other words, the first class of the day would be referred to as the "eighth hour class"—it begins at 8:30 A. M. and ends at 9:20 A. M. The second hour class which commences at 9:30 A. M. and ends at 10:20 A. M., will be called the "ninth hour class." The same procedure would apply for all the other classes in a similar fashion.

Invitation Extended For Auto Committee

Freshman students will not be allowed to keep cars on campus again this year as was the rule last year. But President Martin said he would look favorably upon the organization of a student committee to study the whole matter of student cars on campus which is becoming an increasingly serious problem, not only at Trenton but throughout the whole country. This committee would, of necessity, have to be composed of intelligent, objective, realistic students. Dr. Martin said that he would be willing to accept suggestions or specific recommendations that the committee might offer after a study of all the various aspects of this problem. Furthermore, the president pointed out, after some concrete regulations have been established, they will be enforced with the utmost care. Offenders will be dealt with firmly and swiftly.

It was also revealed by Dr. Martin that more consideration of freshman requests to maintain a car on campus would be given this year. If the student is a responsible person with a real need for a car he can make a request to the Safety Committee who will give the petition careful consideration.

Any students interested in this problem and willing to work on a committee to solve this problem should contact members of the SIGNAL staff or the administration.

New Developments In Library Announced; Annual Report Indicates Much Progress

Some important developments have taken place in the library during the summer, following the resignation of Miss Anne Voss, Chairman of the Library Science Department, at the end of June. She is succeeded by Mrs. Dorothy W. Ferguson, who served as Circulation Librarian at Trenton State Teachers College for many years. She will not only teach the courses in library science, but also supervise the operations of the Lanning School Li-

Assemblies Are Not Compulsory For All

President Edwin L. Martin has announced that assemblies for the student body other than freshman will not generally be compulsory this year. Upperclassmen will have an option of attending assembly programs or using the time for their own purposes. In some instances, however, the administration or faculty may feel that a particular program should be attended by upperclassmen and in such cases the assembly will be compulsory.

The reason for the change in assembly attendance procedure is one of increased enrollment. Kendall Hall facilities are no longer adequate to meet the needs of the entire student body. Dr. Martin said that the freshmen would be required to be present for assembly programs so that they might see for themselves the type of programs that the college offers. With this in mind they can then make their decisions concerning attendance at assembly programs in future years.

Dr. Martin also expressed hope that upperclassmen would avail themselves of the opportunities that the college assembly programs have for all students. To deny one's self, in Dr. Martin's opinion, of the experiences that assembly programs hold, is to turn aside one of the College's valuable contributions to education.

President Martin stated that though upperclassmen had the option of attending the assembly programs, once in attendance, they should remain until its conclusion. Leaving during the program will not be tolerated.

Facilities Are Increased By Varied Additions

New offices, classrooms, post office, as well as relocation of the college maintenance shops have come to Trenton in the past three months during the summer recess.

A beautiful and well designed science classroom has taken the place of the old girl-commuters' room on the second floor, (room 202). To make space available for other classrooms, the post office has been moved and rebuilt to offer more efficient service in less area and enhance the general tone of the college with its attractive design.

Math and general classrooms have also been built using available area in the basement of Green Hall. A new Ceramic Shop will also go into operation this fall in the basement of Green Hall. To make these new rooms available, a relocation of the maintenance shops of the college from Green Hall to the Old Inn was necessary. New Administration offices have been designed and built within the framework of the old office area in Green Hall on the first floor.

President Martin has announced that facilities for new publication offices are available should members of the various staffs desire them and are willing to work in setting them up. Dr. Martin has also revealed tentative plans for relocation of the College Book Store and of increasing its services to the college beginning sometime this year, if possible. These new services would eventually include laundering, cleaning and other such services for students.

library. Mrs. Ferguson will be succeeded as Circulation Librarian by Mr. Charles B. Packard who has been on the library staff for more than a decade. A new independent position of Readers' Adviser has been created to which Miss Alice C. Moore, Head of the Circulation Department of Wilkes-Barre (Pennsylvania) Public Library, has been appointed; she will hold the rank of Assistant Professor. [Continued on Page Three]

Additions To Faculty and New Administrators Indicate Growth

Outstanding Personnel Come to Trenton; New Positions Are Created

Many new faces are present in this year's college scene, not only in the ranks of the student body, but also in the growing corps of faculty members, as well as within the administration itself. The new appointments and changes in the administrative staff at the college for the ensuing academic year bring with them complete administration re-organization which has created positions not existing before this year. The completely new positions are:

Director of Student Teaching, Placement and Follow Up, and Chairman of Extension Divisions, while a third position, that of Dean of the College incorporates much that was in the post of Dean of Instruction last year, but carrying more responsibility.

The new appointments and changes in the administrative staff of the college for 1957-58 are as follows:

Edwin L. Martin: Dean of Instruction for April 1956 to June 1957, became Acting President of the college on July 1, 1957, and President on September 1, 1957.

Velma D. Hayden: Professor of Education, Dean of the College. B.A. and M.A., University of Southern California; Ph.D., University of Connecticut. Dr. Hayden's experience includes teaching of English in high schools of Massachusetts and Connecticut, Counselor and Dean of Girls at the Bristol High School in Connecticut, Dean of Women at the State Teachers College at New Haven, Conn., Associate Professor at New York University, and for the past year, Professor of Education at the University of South Carolina.

Atomic Expert Talks At Initial Assembly

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, a well known science consultant and Director of the Nuclear Science Service will present the initial assembly program on Thursday, September 12, which will be one of the few compulsory assemblies for the entire student body.

Dr. Lapp, author of "Atoms and People," "The New Force," and "Must We Hide?," has received excellent reviews throughout the country for lectures such as "Atomic Energy Today," "Science and World Affairs," "The Scientist and Society" and "The World of Tomorrow." He has now also added two new lecture subjects to his repertoire which cover great controversial subjects of our time; "Atomic Disarmament," and "Radiation—How it Affects You." The students of Trenton have an opportunity of hearing a man who contributed much to the development that took place in the first decade of the Atomic Age and who, because of his magnificent background, is well versed and qualified to speak on these pressing problems of modern society.

After graduating and earning his doctorate in physics from the University of Chicago, Dr. Lapp served in recent years as Assistant Director of the Argonne National Laboratory until he was appointed Scientific Advisor to the War Department General Staff. He then became Executive Director of Dr. Bush's Research and Development Board in Washington, and later, head of the Nuclear Physics Board of the Office of Naval Research.

With all of his great activity, Dr. Lapp, aside from writing three books, has been a frequent contributor to such widely read magazines as THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, LIFE, COLLIER'S, READERS DIGEST and other leading periodicals.

Positions are open to all students on the Signal and Seal staffs for photographers and darkroom assistants for the school year 1957-58. Students interested in photography can apply for the various positions at a meeting of the Photography Staff on Friday, September 20, 1957, in Green Hall 207 at 11 A. M. The Photography Staff has a fully equipped darkroom and other photographic supplies available for use by all members of its organization.

Dean Hayden

Charles W. McCracken: Professor of Education, Dean of Students. A.B., Duke University; M.S., University of Pennsylvania; Ph.D., Ohio State University. A veteran of World War II, Dr. McCracken has engaged in Case-work Training with the White-Williams Foundation, served as Dean of Men at Muskingum College, and as Dean of Students at Muskingum College and at Allegheny College.

James M. Orr: Associate Professor of Education, Registrar. A.B., Muskingum College; M.Ed., University of Pittsburgh; M.A., Yale University. Mr. Orr taught at the Junior-Senior High School in Aliquippa, Pa., and has been connected with New Haven College since 1934, serving at various times as teacher, Director of Student Personnel, Director of Admissions, and Registrar.

Michael W. Fano: Assistant Professor of Education, who served as Registrar during the year 1956-57, is now Director of Student Teaching, Placement and Follow-up.

Stephen Poliacik: Associate Professor of Education, who has been a member of the Education Department faculty since 1951, has been made Chairman of the Extension Division. [Continued on Page Four]

IT HAPPENS EVERY YEAR . . .

The Opportunity Exists . . .

Off in the future lie great plans of progress for Trenton State as well as for almost all other institutions of learning. To achieve the plans that must become a reality if the college is to contribute its share to the ever-expanding field of education, the students who now have the good fortune to be attending the increasingly crowded facilities of the college should think ahead, realize their part in the eventual growth, and too, realize that from them must emanate the spirit that will prevail through all of college life and contribute so much to the future.

The college has a fine record for the past years, but now that the great surge in this country's population is going to be felt in ever increasing ways, the college has to integrate its fine heritage with new and far-reaching plans. People with these plans for the future are present in the college; they are our new administrators. Perhaps one of their greatest problems will be that of leading Trenton to even greater heights than it has thus far attained, while still maintaining its heritage. This surely can be accomplished, the administration is optimistic and confident. To speak with them individually and collectively is to realize their thoughtful, constructive forward vision. Each is suffused with unmistakable certainty and optimism that is sincere and intent. President Martin has set the tone for our future expansion in a statement to the editor, "The college has only one standard, which is, the best possible quality in everything. Anything less is unacceptable." The administration needs and WANTS student help, support, and cooperation. This must come freely from the students, not forced upon them by administration or faculty, else the spirit of oneness will be destroyed at its roots.

Government in a democratic society must be run by both the authorities and the citizens. Similarly, a democratic school must have the cooperation of both administration and the students. Our administration is ready to work for us. It is up to us to give them our full support. If we disagree with a specific measure, we have the right, and the responsibility to present constructive criticism. We should use our privilege. Constructive criticism is not given in a dormitory room, a classroom, or student union unless the criticisms concern these places. We can voice our opinions through the SIGNAL, the Executive Board, or through a written or personal communication with the administrative forces behind the measures to which we object.

The student body may be apathetic as has been the case many times in the past, but we are certain that if students would meet, and talk with our excellent administration as they have been invited to do, the two can work together to elevate the prestige and principles of Trenton State. We, the STATE SIGNAL staff, pledge our support to the new administration, and we feel that the rest of the student body will cooperate and help to LEAD our college to the goals that lie ahead.

Success or . . .

All of us are now on the threshold of a new year in our lives; another year at Trenton State Teachers College is soon to begin. For some, this is the concluding step to the completion of a college career. For others, it adds another link in the obtaining of a degree. Then there are those for whom this year presents a new experience. We welcome the freshmen to our campus and hope their future years at State are happy and profitable.

Now is the time for all students, upperclassmen and underclassmen alike, to seriously consider the year that is to come. What do you want to gain in this year? Will this new school term be successful or will it be wasted time?

The more you put into your college life, the more you will get out of it. You have a fresh start today to try to get all you can from the forthcoming year. Make this year one of the best years in your life, you will never regret it.

Positions on the Signal staff are still available. All persons who are interested please write or contact the Editors.

Educated Judgment?

With highest hopes and eager heart
Her mind was keen, her spirit gay—
It was a most auspicious start.

Now Susie came from Tintown
A village quiet and remote,
She'd lived her life in simple style,
Untaught in fashion's latest note.

Her clothes seemed adequate to her
For college and adventure.
On campus she was unaware
Of wagging tongues and censure.

Said Sister Sleek of Gaddy Girls,
"We can't afford to rush her;
She hasn't any proper clothes
To be a Kendall usher."

Said Rita Right of Snappy Snips,
"That Susie Freshman doesn't fit.
It seems to me she has no class;
In other words, she hasn't 'It.'"

Throughout the first semester
All the girls in Susie's class
Before the Elder Sisters
Did in fear and trembling pass.

And then right after Mid-years
All the Sisters down at State
Began the Rushing Season
When the girls would learn their fate.

They held their parties often,
And reveled, nights and days;
The freshmen and the Sisters
Were in a merry maze.

At last the zero hour arrived
When all the hopeful lasses
Wrote breathlessly on little slips
Their choice among the "Classes."

The Sisters gathered privately,
Adorned with wisdom's halo;
They separated goats and sheep,
And each one had her say-so.

The slips were scanned with curious gaze;
The Sisters have their say
Why this one should, and this one Shouldn't
Be allowed to walk their way.

When all this catty business
Had spent its nasty self,
The names of those rejected
Were placed upon the shelf.

Upon the shelf went Susie's name.
She heard of it next day.
She didn't understand at first
Why things turned out this way.

She cried herself to sleep that night,
She wished herself away.
She felt that somehow she had failed—
What would her parents say?

It's good that time should heal all wounds.
Our Susie's woe included.
And so at last when Spring arrived
She knew she'd been deluded.

Thus she learned a lesson
She never found in books;
That many judge a person
Just by the way she looks.

But Susie wonders why, at State,
Sororities still flourish
To foster caste among the girls,
And ugly feelings nourish.

THE LION'S ROAR

the fact that the administration has offered new facilities to them in Green Hall. After being buried so long, deep in the basement catacombs of the Dr. West Memorial Library, the overjoyed "Signal" staff can come out of the underground to decent working conditions.

If for no other reason than to see what the new coaching staff can do with the athletically inclined, the student body should turn out in droves. Empty stands make for empty hearts and this lion will do more than growl if the teams don't get the well deserved support they are entitled to.

With all the available opportunity for students to express their ideas and beliefs on subjects of general college policy, it will be interesting to see just how many accept the privilege and responsibility of doing so. The new administration has voiced its willingness to cooperate with students, listen to the gripes and arguments as well as their ideas and plans concerning many areas of college life. It will be up to the students to initiate such things as open forums, student-faculty and/or student-administration discussions. A close scrutiny of this phase of student activity will reveal the type of students the College has—constructive leaders or gripping followers.

Speaking of freshmen, those humble folk will be put through the mill shortly by those uppity, high flying sophomores. The Class of '60 Woodies are busy at this very moment preparing beautiful marble stones with the following epitaph: "Here lie John and Mary Freshman, slain by villainous upperclassmen of the mental institution at Hillwood Lakes in September, 1957, for falling short of required qualifications."

Miss Moore has a B.A. and M.A. degree from Bucknell University; her major field of undergraduate and graduate work was English Literature. She also holds a B.S. in L.S. from the Library School at Columbia University. Miss Moore served on the staff of the Brooklyn Public Library for several years prior to becoming high school librarian and later head librarian of the public library in her home-town, Sunbury, Pennsylvania. Miss Moore is especially interested in readers' guidance and has worked extensively with students of the two colleges in Wilkes-Barre. At Trenton she will assume full responsibility for the Main Reading Room and for the audio-visual materials. She will give a maximum of attention to the needs of the incoming freshman class; this should indirectly relieve some of the heavy pressure on Miss Perry.

Circulation Increases

Even aside from these important staff changes, there was no dull moment in the library during the summer. The circulation desk was kept busy by the greatly increased demands of this year's summer school students; in July they actually took out about 58% more books than in the corresponding month of 1956.

The annual report of the librarian features on the title page the bookplate for the Roscoe L. West Fund. This bookplate has been praised by many outside people as being unusually attractive and dignified; it was the work of the Trenton Printing Company, which carried out a design by Mr. Robert Burns. In his annual report, Dr. Hirsch was able to point out a great deal of progress which had been made in spite of the lack of commensurate financial resources. He stated that at the end of the academic year "the position of this library as the largest teachers college library and one of the strongest and most modern college libraries in the State of New Jersey remains unquestioned." He paid tribute to Dr. West's accomplishments in this connection. Dr. Hirsch expressed his appreciation for the many ways in which the students had shown their genuine interest in the welfare of the library and added: "Nothing pleased the librarian more than the fact that the student body voted overwhelmingly the sum of $1,000 needed to create the Roscoe L. West Fund."

Dr. West Offers Suggestions

Dr. West, before sailing for England, made two suggestions to Dr. Hirsch for purchases from the new fund. He felt that the library should acquire Thomas Jefferson's Papers and Abraham Lincoln's Collected Works. Both of these magnificent sets, by the way, have New Jersey publishers: the Jefferson papers are issued by the Princeton University Press and the Lincoln edition was sponsored by the Rutgers University Press. Dr. West promised to send further proposals from England. The student committee on the Roscoe L. West Fund will meet later in September for action on these and other suggestions.

Due to a number of windfalls, the library collections had one of the best years in the whole history of the college. 5,255 volumes were added in 1956-57; that is about twice as many as in most earlier years. 1,237 volumes were withdrawn; this was part of an extensive weeding operation in which the library staff has engaged in the past few years. The total book stock now is 82,293 volumes. In addition, the library owns more than 1,000 filmstrips and 1,850 records, not to speak of the many thousands of pamphlets, pictures and clippings. It is hoped that our record collection can be substantially improved during the coming year; this seems especially desirable in order to get the fullest benefit of the beautiful Hi-Fi machine which the library owes to Sigma Tau Chi. The library at present is intensifying its efforts to consolidate its back files of important journals. This seems imperative in view of the fact that many departments make much more extensive use of periodical material than they had done in the past and that the graduate program is getting underway.

Increased Enrollment Presents Dorm Problem

Over 1,200 students were expected to be enrolled at the College by today. This can be attributed to the large Freshman Class which was anticipated to have a minimum of 460 members.

One of the big problems that accompanies this increase in the student body is one of housing facilities. The campus facilities are just not adequate for the increased demand upon them, so many freshman students will have to live in homes in the surrounding community. This problem has created a degree of uncertainty about the final number of students who will enroll at the College. The administration has been busy trying to find housing facilities for students off campus. Any student living off campus, even in nearby homes, will be considered a commuting student, though in reality, they are residing away from their homes and in the past would have been considered resident students.

Veterans' Club

Under the very able leadership of our first president, John B. Moullette, the Veterans' Club at Trenton State Teachers College has come a long way in the past year, 1956-57. In our program we have continually advocated that we as Vets at State are a service group to the College and we shall continue to do so in future years.

It is with great pleasure that the Club is able to announce the names of the recently elected officers for the forthcoming year, 1957-58. Robert Stern, President; Lou Athey, Vice President; Jay Neary, Treasurer; Ray Fedak, Corresponding Secretary; Herbert Hess, Recording Secretary; Stanton R. Price, Publicity Director; and Steve Hullit, Liaison Officer.

The organization expects to carry out a program of events which will be a credit to the College and the Veterans' Club as well. The program will include such activities as sponsored talks by people well versed in such fields as foreign policy, veterans in education and community life, as well as a capacity filled program of social events.

The members of the Veterans' Club welcome any constructive criticism or suggestions from the members that will further aid us in the future aims and goals of our organization.

Kappa Delta Pi

The officers of the Gamma Zeta chapter of Kappa Delta Pi have begun work on the plans for the year. Those officers elected for this year are: President, Judith Cubberley, Senior Elementary; Vice President, Theodore Lynch, Senior History-Geography; Secretary, Irene Casper, Senior Elementary; Treasurer, Evelyn Humphries, Senior Elementary; Historian Recorder, Connie Didur, Senior Physical Education.

The first activities for the year will include formal initiation for new members and a reception for Freshmen. The reception will be for members of the Freshman Class who rank in the upper fifth of the class.

Kappa Delta Pi, the National Honor Society in Education, has as its aim to encourage high professional, intellectual and personal standards among educators. In keeping with this aim, the Gamma Zeta chapter will again sponsor open meetings on campus dealing with topics of current interest.

Code of Personnel Practices Is Adopted

New Jersey teachers have adopted a new Code of Personnel Practices on teacher employment. The Code, as drafted by the Ethics Committee of the New Jersey Education Association, appeared in the June issue of the teachers' monthly magazine, the "NJEA Review."

Among the Code's suggestions is the request that superintendents "contact prospective teachers from other school districts only after they have applied for a position in the administrator's own school system." Boards of education are asked "when employing a teacher from another district, to respect all terms of that teacher's existing contract." Teachers, in turn, are expected to obtain release from an existing contract before signing another contract.

These recommendations were proposed after the NJEA Ethics Committee had received persistent reports that some teachers, administrators, and school board members were using questionable and unprofessional employment procedures in moving teachers from district to district.

The Code asks that school administrators "allow teachers a reasonable time to consider the terms of a contract before requiring an acceptance or refusal and also to make promises of employment or promotion only after proper authority has been granted for so doing."

Teachers are requested to "respond to an offered contract within the specified time and to advise their present employer immediately upon the acceptance of a position in another district."

Board of education members are expected to "make no promises or commitments as an individual board member to any applicant seeking professional employment and to employ professional staff members solely from candidates recommended by the responsible administrative head of the school system."

The New Jersey Education Association, which is urging all teachers, board members, and school administrators to abide by the Code, represents over 36,000 teachers and school administrators in the State.

Fraternities . . .

Theta Nu Sigma

The Executive Committee of Theta Nu Sigma would like to welcome back all brothers of the fraternity and extend to them the best of wishes for a highly successful academic and social year.

Vice-President George Toole will be holding the gavel at meetings during the first nine weeks of the semester while President Merlin Coslick and the other senior 13s are out doing their practice teaching. Good luck to them and to the junior 13s, who are also doing their bit "in the state."

Plans have already been made for many social affairs and service projects, through which the spirit of fraternal brotherhood may be even further exhibited. The usual parties, dances, and jam sessions will be sponsored throughout the year, as well as the special events during the holidays and many new activities. The popular fraternity band, under the direction of Ronnie Bennett, and chorus, led by Dave Anderson, already have a full schedule of shows on campus and throughout the state. This year, an even greater emphasis will be placed on fraternal participation in sports, both indoor and out. As always, there will be "something for every ONE of us" in Theta Nu.

Three New Coaches Appointed; Outlook Promising

Youth, Fresh Ideas Keynote New Season

During the summer vacation months, three new men were appointed to the Health and Physical Education Department. They are Dr. George H. Krablin, head of the department, Mr. Edward F. Brink, and Mr. Robert Salois, both Assistant Professors. Along with Mr. Roy Van Ness, they will assume all coaching responsibility.

Dr. Krablin was formerly the Director of Physical Education at St. Lawrence University for 11 years, and at Trenton will also hold the office of Director of Athletics, besides being tennis coach and assistant basketball coach.

Mr. Salois will teach in the department, and also be coach of football and baseball. Mr. Brink will coach soccer and basketball, and be in charge of Men's Housing.

Mr. Van Ness will continue as assistant football coach and track coach.

Dr. Krablin assumed the duties of freshman coach of football, basketball, and baseball when he first arrived at St. Lawrence. His court team was undefeated in his initial start as mentor. He also taught tennis while at the University. Before entering graduate work, Dr. Krablin won letters in track competition at Syracuse University, participating in the hurdle events, and the javelin. He also played end position in football for one season.

The new director's office will be located at 120 Green, and he has announced himself as receptive to all suggestions concerning Trenton State athletics.

Mr. Brink attended Allegheny College, where he was very active in intercollegiate sports. He played full-back for four years on the gridiron squad, and put in a year at the guard position in basketball. He also chalked up a year in the outfield on Allegheny's diamond nine.

He also played basketball while in the Army, from 1952 to 1954.

After his service tenure, Mr. Brink served as Co-ordinator of Men's Housing at Allegheny, and during the last two years coached basketball at Meadville, Pennsylvania. Both seasons were winning ones under his tutelage.

Mr. Brink favors the man to man defense in basketball, and is anxious to see the prospective turnouts for the squads in both soccer and basketball.

Mr. Salois attended New Hampshire University, where he played hockey, baseball, and football. It was in the latter that he was most outstanding, serving for three years in the guard slot on the Varsity team. His first year with the team was an undefeated team, and in his final season, 1952, he was the defensive captain. After serving in the Air Force, he went to Valley Forge, where he coached both football and basketball, producing winning seasons in both sports.

A man who enjoys football to the utmost degree, Mr. Salois openly urges all those who wish to come out for the team to do so, as he promises that every candidate will be closely looked at as to ability and potential.

The new helmsman plans to work his offense from the split-T formation, and has been making preparations for the coming season since mid-August.

Library . . .

71,035 transactions at the loan desk in 1956-57. There was a sharp increase in the use of reserved books, which was accompanied by a drop in the per-capita figure of two-week loans. This is an undesirable development which however may have been inevitable in the year of transition from the old curriculum to the new. It is urgently hoped that in 1957-58 students will search harder for good solid books that they may take out on a two-week loan—rather than just catch some reserved books for hasty perusal.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

By LEE MALTENFORT

This year marks the beginning of a new era in Trenton State intercollegiate athletics. New coaches have been added, some team schedules enlarged, and this year marks the beginning of the New Jersey State Teachers College Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which shall be dealt with more fully in a later issue. Along with all these tangible changes, this writer fervently hopes for one other major change—in school spirit.

For the benefit of incoming freshmen, and to refresh the memory of upperclassmen, this is an opportune time for a good look at our athletic program.

We are, by acceptable standards, a small school, yet we field six teams in major sports. In the fall, football and soccer games hold sway for a period of seven weeks. In the winter time basketball, both Varsity and Junior Varsity, dominate the scene. During the spring, men from Trenton represent the school in baseball, track, and tennis.

Our opponents are well selected, not being set-ups, nor are they too far out of our class. We compete with the other State Colleges, small schools in New Jersey and surrounding states, and this year as last, we meet the Dover Air Force Base football team.

The records compiled by the various State teams over the years show many ups and downs, long losing streaks followed by an undefeated and untied season, and those seasons in which we won our share, and also dropped some contests. But it is this writer's opinion that the Won and Lost record is not the important thing when evaluating any of our teams.

Each man who competes on any team at Trenton, intercollegiate or intramural, does so of his own free will. He is out on the practice field or playing field because he wants to be, because he likes the sport. He may have other secondary reasons, such as personal glory, or pleasing someone at home or at school, but he wants to participate.

His rewards range from a slap on the back from his teammates, for a well-executed play, to his letter at the end of the season. The only personal gain available to him is personal satisfaction.

We do not give scholarships here for athletic ability to any man, no matter who. There are some men who actively compete on the field who have work scholarships, for work in either the equipment or training rooms, scholarships similar to those given for work in the Inn, or the library, or for proctoring. These men are held responsible for doing their work, before and after games and practice sessions.

These are the men who make up Trenton State teams.

The records compiled by Trenton teams, and comments made about them from parties outside the school, are amazing in many respects. Of our soccer teams in the past five years, this writer has heard one remark consistently, in that while we don't always field the best team, our boys are outstanding as being one of the most competitive teams in this area. In 1955 we handed the aggregation from Rutgers University its only set-back, save their final loss to Drexel in the finals of the Eastern Championship. In that contest, the Lions had to come from a 3-0 deficit at the end of the first period to win 4-3.

As far as I know, we are the only college football team in the nation to get a full page picture in Life magazine and national recognition in leading papers because of fame. The occasion was our 41st straight loss, in 1949, setting an all-time record. But no one noticed us the next year, when we lost but one game, and in 1951 we were undefeated and untied.

Basketball has had its ups and downs at State. At the end of the school year 1956-57, plans had been formulated to make the coming court season the inaugural for the NJST-CIAA.

Baseball has always been a good sport at Trenton, and we have not had a losing season since the end of World War II. Both tennis and track have held their own over the years.

Last year, at some of our home games, we did not get a 10% attendance, fair weather or foul. We charge no admittance for any athletic event, and yet we could not admit to an average of 250 people to a home football game.

Every one who takes part in any athletic contest, coaches, players, or managers, does so because he wants to. It is a basic human desire to be appreciated for any effort. It means a lot to each man participating when he knows there are people in the stands who want to see him do his best, for himself and for the school.
